The identity cards (Categories D, C, O and S purple coded) are equivalent to a residence permit. They cannot be used as travel documents unless accompanied by a passport. The identity cards (Categories HC and S orange coded) are not equivalent to a residence permit.

When designing the Diplomatic Cards, the Ministry for Foreign Affairs prioritizes the security aspects of the physical card so as to minimise the risk of tampering or forgery. The cards contain an MRZ (Machine Readable Zone) that picks up certain applicant details which are printed on the card. Another security feature is a holographic laminate which covers the front of the card. The Ministry also adds an embossed image (the same one we have on the holographic laminate) which is printed strategically on the picture and the applicant's details. This assures that if someone tries to change a picture or details to forge the card, the embossment would be ruined and the authorities will immediately realise that the card was tampered with.
